

TELLING PEOPLE ABOUT MYSELF

When researchers listen to how we talk to each other and what we talk about, they can figure out how our brains work!

Imagine you are meeting someone for the first time. Think of three things that you could tell them about yourself.

1

2

3

Imagine that you wanted to know about someone else. Think of three things that you could ask them to find out more!

1 ?

2 ?

3 ?

Children's Hospital of Philadelphia Research Institute continues its groundbreaking research on numerous diseases and disorders that effect children. Without families and individuals like you to participate in research, many breakthroughs would not be possible. Scan the QR code on the left to sign up to our Research Participant Registry. Questions? E-mail the Recruitment Enhancement Core at participantrecruitme@email.chop.edu or call 267-426-6846.