

WHAT IS A RESEARCH STUDY?

A research study is similar to a science experiment that's done in school. We start off with a question, then think about ways we can find the answers to that question. We use the help of people like you to help doctors and scientists make better medicines. Scientists and doctors may ask to take a sample of blood to understand what happens in the body.

Children's Hospital of Philadelphia Research Institute continues its groundbreaking research on numerous diseases and disorders that effect children. Without families and individuals like you to participate in research, many breakthroughs would not be possible. Scan the QR code on the left to sign up to our Research Participant Registry. Questions? E-mail the Recruitment Enhancement Core at participantrecruitme@email.chop.edu or call 267-426-6846.